Ready Made Department.

The range of styles and variety of cloths in the tailor-made garments never before showed to such advantage the wonderful strides that have been made in the manu facture of ladies' tailormade wear.

A jacket or suit that fits holds the secret of ease and grace. Not an ill-fitting garment in the whole stock -such is the secret of success in our cloak and suit department.

Suit for $12.

Ladies' suits made of all wool imported Monoco serges, body and sleeves of jackets lined with rhadame lining, skirt lined with percaline, all seams are finished, velveteen binding. As an example of our good values we offer them at $12

Dress Skirts.

These garments come in large variety of cloths, prices and styles. Great care has been taken that they should hang just right; thus an important point of a well fitting skirt was 98c to $20.

SPRING SUITINGS.

For many years we have studied the art of making the best clothes that can be made, aiming for perfection. At the same time we have carefully figured to make the prices as reasonable as it is possible io secure first-class work, aiming for economy. That is one reason why our Spring Suits and Covert Coats are better value for the money than can be secured elsewhere, for perhaps a fraction less in price. If you want exclusive styles in woolens and special in make and trimmings, call and look them over.

ACTION TILL MONDAY

Unless Spain Forces It. Americans Leaving Cuba as Fast as Possible.

Hitch in Spanish Negotiations. Ministry Reaffirms Its Intentions Not to Yield. Fears of War More Serious.

(Special Dispatch to the Transcript,) Washington, April 7.-- Up to noon nothing has occurred to change the present status of affairs. A cabinet officer said that diplomacy has run its course. No negotiations of any character now pending nor will be resumed.

The president remains firm in his determination to intervene forcibly in Cuba if necessary to put an and to hostilities. A naval demonstration against Havana has been considered and almost certainly would be made in the next few days if Spain refuses to yield. If this demonstration should result in war the president is ready to accept the issue. No action will be taken, unless Spain forces it, till Monday. The senate has adjourned to that time. The senate committee on foreign relations did not meet today for the first time since the President's Maine message. POWERS TRY TO PREVENT WAR.

Representatives Call on the President

This Morning.

Washington, April 7.—Representatives of the European powers seeking to avert war called on the President this morning. The governments of Great Britain and France, Germany, Austria, Russia and secured. Prices range from Italy were represented. The call was very brief, and then there was an official call on the state denartment.

They consulted with Secretaries Sherman and Day behind closed doors. Sir Julian Paunosfote as the representative of the six powers presented the president this noon with a note which embodies the action taken at the diplomatic conferences. It is as follows: The undersigned representative of Germany, Austria, France, Great Britain, Italy and Russia, address in the name of their governments a pressing appeal to the feelings of humanity and moderation of the president and the Americans in the existing differences. They samestly hope further negotiations will lead to an agreement securing the maintenance of peace

LEAVING THE ISLAND.

Americans Crowding Out of Cuba Lee Still There.

Washington, April 7. - A cablegram from Gen. Lee this morning says 200 Americans have left Cuba. All was quiet this morning and it was announced there would be no change of any importance in the message unless there is a change of facts, which is not likely.

The report was sent out from Key West last night that Gen. Lee had returned to this country with the first boat from Havana. This was stated by passengers on the boat at its first arrival, and not till later was it learned that Gen. Lee was not among the passengers.

Havana, April 7.—After many days of foolish confidence that something would happen, a number of people here. Americans and others, have been plunged into foolish fear and turmoil. People who should know better insist that war has been declared, others are sure that the pope has secured peace with honor Bankers with close American connections are packing their papers, collecting debts, arranging for guards for their vaults and sending their families away Cuban women, with husbands, fathers, or brothers in the insurgent ranks, are in a state of terror. The few simon pure Americans who remain keep as cool as

No doubt many will leave as the result of a needless scare. singe probably they would be an safe here as anywhere, a possible bombardment being left out of the account. Some Spaniards still talk wildly about the United States fleet being blown out of the water by fire from the Havana hatteries on the water front, but as careful practice two days ago showed the inability of the gunners to come within 100 yards of a target on smooth water at a range of two miles or thereabouts, naval men need not be apprehensive of the effect of the Havana guns.

(Special Dispatch to The Transcript.)

Madrid, April 7.—There is a hitch in the peace negotiations and the Cuban armistice proclamation will not be issued today as was expected. There is great disappointment at the United States legation. The cabinet ministers at a meeting yesterday evening decided to appoint a committee to organize and superintend a subscription to increase the strength of

A semi-official note issued after adjournment says that the cabinet considered every aspect of the situation and the outcome of the deliberation was the adhesion of the government to all its previous decisions without modification. Resolutions to that effect were adopted.

It is explained that the decisions to which the Spanish government adheres refer to those outlined at the last conference between Minister Woodford and the Spanish ministers.

The morning papers here are unanimous in believing the situation very grave. Several say Minister Woodford leaves tomorrow. He has taken a resi-

Big Gut to Spain-

Madrid, April 7 .- The Paris correspondent of "The Pais" telegraphs that he had an interview with Rotschild yesterday, who is alleged to have informed him that he was purchasing a cruiser to present to Spain, as that country has his warmest sympathy and love.

London - April 7-It is reported that the queen regent of Spain has again appealed to Queen Victoria directly asking the latter to exert her influence to avert war. She touchingly recalled that both Victoria and herself are widows and thus deprived of advisors.

Weary and Bisgusten Crowns.

Washington, April 7.-When the senate convened yesterday intense expectancy, amounting to excitement, prevalled both on the floor and in the galleries. The president's message had been positively promised, and its coming was awaited with genuine anxiety. Ten minutes after the senate convened consideration of the sundry civil bill was resumed and, with the exception of eight minutes consumed by an executive session in which Senator Davis announced that no message would be sent in, the entire session was consumed by the appropriation bill. It was practically completed when laid aside for the day.

After waiting patiently in the galleries and corridors of the house for hours, many of them from 8 of clock , in the morning until shortly before 3 o'clock. the thousands who had assembled to hear the president's Cuban message turned away weary and disgusted at the delay. Never before was there such disappointment at the capitol The members felt it even more keenly than the spectators, and for two hours afterward they stood about the lobbies discussing the latest phase of the situation. The debate over the army reorganization bill attracted little or no attention. It was completely overshadowed by the more absorbing question. Considerable opposition to the bill developed on the ground that its provision for an extension of the regular army in time of war to 104,000 men would be inimical to the national guard and the volunteer forces upon which the country had heretofore relied in time of stress. There will be a strong effort to recommit the bill. Protest In Advance.

Washington, April 7.—Members of the United States Brewers' association appeared before the ways and means committee of the house yesterday and protested against an increase in the tax on beer to meet war emergencies. They dited the newspaper reports that the committee would double the tax and urged that there was no reason why the brewers should be subjected to an additional tax while other lines remained

Chairman Dingley explained that the increase had not been considered either by the committee or the house, but that if they wanted to state their views on that understanding they might do so. If it becomes necessary to increase taxes all along the line, the brewers would raise no objection; but it would necessitate in the case of retailers either raising the price per glass, or furnishing less of the product for a given sum. In the event of a war causing the tax to be raised from $1 to $2 per barrel, they asked that congress provide a satisfactory rebate, as 15 percent should be allowed for spoilage from whatever cause.

Believes In Independence. New York, April 7,-At the regular monthly meeting of the merchants' and manufacturers' board of trade of New York yesterday, the following resolution was unanimously adopted: "Your committee on national affairs believes that Spain is responsible for the loss of the Maine and that a substantial indemnity and an ample reparation should be demanded from Spain without further delay. Further, the committee believes the independence of Cuba should be recognized, and should be secured with peace if possible, but by force of arms if

Washington, April 7.--The most careful investigation in official circles this morning fails to develop anything in support of the theory that the delay of the President's message was due to the situation at Madrid rather than Havens.

When the announcement was first made yesterday that the message had been withheld, the inference was drawn in some congressional circles that the delay was partially induced by the attitude of the Queen Regent, who was reported willing to yield everything demanded by the United States provided it could be done without precipitating a popular disturbance in Spain. Press dispatches of a pending cabinet crisis in Madrid tended to confirm this.

Those closest to the president retuse to discuss the Madrid situation today further than to say that there was no information from that quarter and that no fresh negotiations had been opened. It was reiterated that the pivot of the situation was in Hayans.

This was confirmed by members of the foreigh relations committees, to whom this explanation had been made in such form that they professed themselves satisfied to accept it.

Washington, April 7.-- President inc-Kinley received a long cipher cablegram able and increasing in magnitude. How from Minister Woodford last night, will it be when the conditions are rewhich, it is stated, promised important versed? Some of them will be forced to and favorable developments at Madrid seek homes in other states, where the the United States.

The queen regent, her dynasty having been guaranteed continuence in power by France, Austria-Hungary and Italy, who remain must either compete with has planned, it is stated, to take steps toward ultimately granting independence to Cuba, and it is expected to begin today by a proclamation for an petition for work in other occupations armistice in Cuba, which will lead to a grant of independence to Cuba at the end of six months upon the payment offered by the Cubans of part of the war debt.

President McKinley will wait to see how all this develops. If Spain would promise to make Cuba free at the end of six months he would agree to it, and all the war preparations would be over; but it has not taken that tangible shape as yet. If it does President McKinley will feel amply justified for the manner in which he has managed the case.

While the message was awaited there came a hurried summons of leaders of the senate and house to the White House, and they were there informed that the message was to be withheld upon the information received from Sonsul General Lee. The reasons he gave were deemed entirely satisfactory by all, and Senator Davis informed the senate, while the house leaders carried the news to that body. That the danger to American life was considered sufficient reason for non-action appeared in the postponement of all meetings to consider the situation. The proposed armistice by Spain injected another feature into the discussion of the situation, and while some were very hopeful that a satisfactory solution of the problem might eventuate from it, the general feeling was that the conditions in Cuba. the determination of the insurgents to continue fighting until independence was recognized, and the sentiment of this country in favor of Cuba's independence of Spain possibly made overtures on this line too late.

The frank statement of the president to the leaders and to several prominent Democrats that his course was deemed absolutely necessary by Consul General Lee, to insure the safe departure of the Americans still in Cuba, has caused them to accept the situation in good faith. Some of the most radical, after hearing the statements of those who saw the president, appeared satisfied. . Those with whom the president talked came away with a very strong impression that the massage would mean war unless Spain backed down squarely. One of them, who has been very active in antagonizing delay, says the message will be perfectly satisfactory to him and will fully meet the expectations of the coun-Pending the transmittal of the message, in view of the situation presented by the president, all plans looking to action in the house will be abandoned, but those who have been taking part in the radical movement, and who always admit the possibility that the time may come when they will have to part company with the president, are, according to the leaders of the movement, more determined than ever to ultimately obtain what they desire. They are at present satisfied with the assurances they have received as to the character of the message, but this has not prevented them from organizing for possible contingencies. The conference which was to have been held last night after the mesenge was in was abandened, but 50 of those who inaugurated the movement met immediately after the house adjourned to discuss the situation. All who were not heartly in sym; pathy with them were invited to leave. Those at the meeting unanimously agreed to wait upon the message, but the movement for a caucus started by the president's supporters, which was also abandoned during the afternoon,

HOURS AND TAXATION.

The Legislature Memorialized For Relief.

Increase in Working Time and Restriction in Taxes Desired.

Boston, April 7.-T. J. Coolidge, A. G. Pierce, Charles L. Lovering, Eliot C. Clarke, C. A. Coleman, Eben S. Draper, Harcourt Amory, Thomas S. Brayton, Howard Stockton, Augustus Lowell, George F. Fabyan, A. S. Covel, A. M. Goodale, H. N. Slater, George S. Silsbee, C P. Baker, Chaires H. Dalton and Albert C. Houghton have united in a memorial to the legislature relative to the state of the cotton industry. They say that the present conditions and prospects of the industry in this state are sufficiently grave to call for an exhaustive study of the premises. They con-"Whether this industry, which tinue: for two generations has added largely to the wealth and population of the state, has reached the highest point of its expansion and is hereafter to decline, is today an open question. That its value to the state is shrinking is beyond doubt. Whether the shrinkage can be arrested and the process of expansion can be resumed is still in doubt. The evidence of shrinkage appears in lower earnings of the operatives, lower prices of the products, lower market values of the plants and lower profits.

If cotton machinery in Massachusetts is to continue to be limited to a less product than similar machinery in other states, and the cost of operating it continues to be more and the taxes upon it higher, it is inevitable that manufacturers will withdraw their capital, sell their machinery or transfer it to other states where conditions are more favorable, and abandon their sites, sacrificing one-third of their property rather than, by continuing a losing business, invite bankruptcy.

The decay of this industry in Massachusetts means to the operatives vastly more than they seem to consider. They have been stronger in their ability to obtain concessions from employers and legislation from the state than their fellow-workers in other states, because the industry has been prosperous, profitay, which may meet the demands of situation of labor is less favorable than it is in this commonwealth; and those states will not be likely to repeat the mistakes in legislation which have proved disastrous here. The operatives each other for a diminishing amount of employment and make concessions to their employers, or else join in the com-

"Under the Dingley tariff labor in cotton mills is fairly well protected against undue foreign competition. The competition comes from other states, where machinery produces more by being run more hours, v 'ere wages are lower, and where the transand other burdens upon the industry are less.

"Unless this competition can be successfully met the outlook for the industry in Massachusetts is not encourage

"In recent years, successive legisla tures have passed many acts intended for the better protection of operatives in mills from the possibly unwise or unfair policy of the manufacturers. Some of these laws have had the natural effect of checking investments in machinery, restricting the opportunities for employment, diverting capital to other states, and helping to build up so sharp a competition outside of Massachusetts that the unfortunate consequences are now too obvious to be any lionger ignored. The diverted capital cannot be recalled. It is a permanent loss to the state. If Massachusetts is to continue its present restrictive policy it should do so with a full understanding of the sacrifices involved, both as to capital and labor, and be content to see her early supremacy as a cotton manufacture continue to decline, while her competitors multiply, or she can face the situation and adapt her policies to meet the necessities of the times.

"If cotton manufacturing in the state becomes unprofitable, one of two things must happen-wages will be reduced, or the business will be abandoned, as has been the case in the iron and glass industries. Either of these consequences would be a great misfortune, which the legislature should, if possible, prevent in the only way in its power: First, by raising the hours of labor at least to the point where they are in every other New England state; and, secondly, by reducing the taxation on manufacturing plants, which is now much in excess of that in high taxed England and in the southern states. The effective way, in our judgment, would be to take off all taxes on machinery, without increasing those on the real estate used for manufacturing purposes.

"The present situation may present itself to some persons as having no deeper significance than a contest between capital and laber, the outcome of which is to be a triumph of one over the other. If this were the truth, there would be no occasion for this communication, and the legislature would have ne call to intervene. It is because the difficulty is fundamental and limited to no class of industries in the state that the responsibility in the premises rests upon the representatives of all the peo-

Ancient Maples Felled—The Drinking Fountain Has Arrived-War Talk -A Professor as a Fireman-He Didn't Understand-Good Friday Service.

A Professor as a Fireman.

fhere was a hot time for a few minutes Tuesday afternoon in David Bastien's barber shop on Spring street. The shop is being renovated and there is consequently more or less confusion of the contents. At about 5 o'clock Arthur Bastien, son of the proprietor, placed up a gallon bottle of benzine, an article that Mr. Bastien uses in the jewelry and repair business which he conducts in connection with the barber shop. The young man dropped the bottle, which broke, and the contents ran over the floor, A small oil stove was burning and the benzine was instantly ignited. A lively blaze was started and Mr. Bestien and his son, sided by H. H. Walker, Edgar Noel, Fred LeRich, a barber, and Professor Russell, who was being shaved, sailed in to put it out. An alarm called out the fire department, but the force in the shop subdued the flames before the firemen arrived. After the trouble was supposed to be over David Bastien picked up a sponge which was burning slightly and his clothing was soon on fire. His son's clothing also took fire and the two menescaped by rear windows in true athletic style while the other men put out the fire in the room a second time. No one was injured and the damage was small, thanks to the presence of plenty of help. With a little more start the fire would have been a bad one to handle, as the snop is surrounded by wooden buildings close by. After matters had quieted down Professor Russell, who did valuant service during the excitement. returned to the barber's chair for a scrape which was much more agreeable than the me in which he had just participated.

War Talk.

The people of the town are greatly interested in the war question, which proves the casef topic of conversation among all classes. The general sentiment favors the freedom of Caba and there is a hope that this will be achieved at an early day. A rumor that war had been declared caused excitement for a short time Wednesday afternoon and there was considerable disappointment when the evening papers failed to bring the president's message. Most people expect war, though there are some who still think it will be averted.

Good Friday Service.

The Good Friday service at St. John's church at 10.30 a. m. will be of much interest. Short addresses on "Our Lord's Passion" will be made by Dr. John Bascom, Professor Livingston, Rev. George P. Merrett and Rev. Theodore Sedgwick, the rector. An invitation is extended to all, and those who cannot give time for the entire service may feel at liberty to enter or leave the church during the singing of the hymns between the ad-

Ancient Maples Felled.

B. F. Bridges has cut down two of the large maples in front of his house on East Main street. Many of the limbs were dead and he considered it best to remove the trees and make room for younger ones which stand near by. The old trees were set by Deacon James Smedley in 1827 and were among the largest maples in the village.

He Didn't Understand.

One young man who renounced smoking during Lent has just learned that the indulgence would have been permissible on Sundays. He supposed that all abstinence in observance of Lent was for 40 consecutive days and nights and it was a revelation to him when he learned that in a sense he had been " going it above." He is now looking forward to Sunday with impatient longing and will probably "hit the pipe" before breakfast.

The Fountain Has Arrived.

The new granite drinking fountain purchased by the Village Improvement society arrived from Vermont Wednesday and the contract to lay the foundation and set it up has been let to Joseph Guilbo. It will be set in front of Mrs. Joseph White's brick block on Main street and will be very ornamental as well as useful. It is expected that it will take about 10 days to complete the work.

Simple Suggestions For Decorative

Work - Music or Work Stand. Making Tempting Tartlete.

A number of pretty ideas for decorative trifles are presented to home workers by The Decorator and Furnisher, among them the following: A delightful accessory for the dressing table can be got out of half a yard of cheap scrim. For this purpose buy the plain scrim without figure in a good tint of cream. About half a yard of this cotton material will serve the purpose. On all four sides let there be a hem of some four inches, above which there should be a clearly defined hemstitch. As a center ornamentation there can be given a flowering design of blossoms by a conventional figure of well curved lines. This middle adornment should be worked in one rich tint of any shado desired. Around this three or four inch border give a simple pattern in wash tinsel. To finish well, a crochet edge around the entire cover greatly improves it, taking care that it should be very narrow and in strong and effective design. The great feature is that this pretty accessory can be laundered weekly if needed, but when washed it should be ! ironed on a soft blanket so as to bring ont the decorative plan.

The one yard pincushion has become now such a fad that it holds its own in every material. Among the prettiest is one of linen, being fine in quality and in a lovely design of single forgetmenots. This pretty affair can be edged with a lace of good honiton make or a narrow renaissance that will stand many washings. Pincushions have now so steadily gained in favor that the old fashioned times have come again, when this useful convenience finds its need on table or bureau, provided the articles selected are those in which beauty of tints prevails. This same idea can be well carried out in any of the richer materials if artistically planned.

As linen is now universally accepted for table decorations a pretty affair can be made of a square of fine linen in which initials with flowering designs are the scheme, the morning glory or honeysuckle being specially attractive. This square doily should be decorated on all four corners and serve as a useful adornment for a vegetable, like baked potatoes, which should never be put in a covered dish. The potatoes should be laid in the middle of the linen, the four corners, folding over in neat order, giving to the whole an inviting appear-

Fashionable Sandwiches. Peanut sandwiches are one of the fads of the hour. These have won enormous success at houses where they have been made properly, according to the New York Herald, which tells how to make them, as follows: A peanut sandwich, to be at its best, requires vigilance, a "head" on the part of the maker and a careful adherence to the "rule." Stale bread, thinly sliced and well buttered, is their outside covering. These sandwiches should be very small. Roasted peanuts are taken for them and chopped up into a fine paste. This is well mixed with a mayonnaise, and the paste is then spread thickly between the slices of bread. Fashionable hostesses, when setting them on a plate, tie them up with narrow brown ribbon-ribbon that has the precise tint of the paste. Another sandwich that has won much appreciation is the lettuce sandwich. liked because of its extreme crispness. To make these a leaf of lettuce of the freshest variety should be put between oblong slices of thin, very liberally buttered bread. A quantity of butter far greater than that used in the average sandwich is necessary for these. Lettuce sandwiches should never be served flat, by the way, but rolled up and served in tiny cylinders.

Pacing as a Business. The latest up to date pacing association bails from France, and there is promise in it of a good future. The Societe des Applications Electriques, Paris, purposes during the coming season to provide electric multicycle pacing at fixed rates by the hour, day or job. For train spins they will furnish an electric tandem, two men to ride it, and accumulators to last an hour. The terms for this for one racing man for 20 to 80 minutes daily will be 800 france per month, or for two racing men for an hour a day 450 france a month. For pacing in races up to 100 kilos a schedule of prices has been drawn up, and above that distance special arrangements will have to be made.-New

Men Who Are Enlisting.

It would be hard to imagine a more diversified lot of men than those who have already signed the rolls of this organization. They include veteran officers of the civil war, bank clerks, students not yet out of school, schoolteschers, young professional men-men of almost all sorts and conditions.

"I am General So-and-so," said a portly, white mustached man yesterday while was present at the headquarters. "I served from the beginning to the end of the civil war, and I feel the most enthusiastic sympathy with this movement. I want to sign one of your enlistment

The general was accommodated and affixed his name to a private's blank. Next came a tall, slender youth, with ourling hair that reached to his coat collar. He had procured a blank in advance and brought it in signed. The clerk looked it and the signer over.

"Are you only 16?" queried the clerk. 'If so, you would surely be rejected by the war department."

The boy straightened up, while a flash came into his blue eyes.
"My father went into the Union army at 16," he said, "and fought till the last gun was fired. I think I'll find a way to become a soldier if there is any real fighting to be done."

The Volunteer Beserve Plan. The plan of the National Volunteer Reserve seems not to be fully understood as yet. In brief, it may be stated that its chief feature is not to be the formation of an armed and drilled body of men so much as to place in possession of the government the names of men who are sufficiently patriotic to be ready to answer the call of the country in time of need.

To that end it is hoped that arrangements may be made with many newspapers throughout the country for the publication of enlistment blanks in their columns. These blanks may be signed and sent to the newspapers, to the headquarters of the organization or to the war department direct. At all events they will eventually fird a lodgment with the department, where it is expected they will be listed and amanged according to local-

The government will thus have specific knowledge not only that there are thousands and millions of men ready to take up arms for the republic, but who they are, exactly where they are and also something about the condition of each individual. It is part of the plan that congress shall authorize the issuing of postal tranks to certain individuals for the purpose of sending the names in free by mail or make some other arrangement to the same end and it would seem to be a very reasonable notion that the government, which is to be the chief beneficiary, should bear this much of the expense. So far whatever money has been paid out has come from the pockets of Mr. Washington himself.

William De Hertburne Washington. William De Hertburne Washington is the son of Colonel Lewis William Wash ington and Ella Bassett. Both father and mother were descendants of members of the original Washington family in America, tracing back both directly and collaterally to a brother of the first president. Lewis William Washington was a figure of some consequence on the Confederate side in the civil war and was one of John Brown's first hostages at Hurper's Ferry.

His wife served the Confederate cause as few women did or could. Their son is a native of Virginia. He was born on June 29, 1863, and the first sound that greeted his infant ears was the popping of musketry, a minor engagement being then in progress in the immediate vicinity of the Washington home. When he grew to years of discretion, he chose civil engineering for his profession and after securing the necessary training at the Maryland college entered the employ of the West Virginia Central railroad. Cu riously enough, his first professional work was done in the immediate vicinity of Tairiax Stone, where the Father of His Country began his career as surveyor. When Mr. Cleveland assumed the presi dential chair for the first time, he appoint ed Mr. Washington consul at London, Canada. He was barely 21 at the time and the youngest man who ever held a con sul's place under this government. When Mr. Harrison succeeded Mr. Cleveland, the young consul retired from the diplo matic service, came to New York and engaged in the building of waterworks.

Resembles the Father of His Country. William De Hertburne Washington re sembles the Father of His Country in many ways. Like him, the present representative of the family is three or four inches more than 6 feet tall, while his physical build is such that the general's uniform fits him as if made for him. Mr. Washington's political affiliations have always been Democratic. His tastes are such that he has given a good deal of time and attention to charity. The organization formed by him under the title of the 6-14-99 club is declared to be one of the most practical societies ever created for the purpose of improving conditions in the crowded parts of this big city.

Mr. Washington is prominently connected with the committee in charge of the coming charter day celebration. He lives at the Waldorf-Astoria. He is still unmarried. His father died years ago. His mother, who was one of those who worked hardest for the completion of the Washington monument, survived until Jan. 18, 1898. DEXTER MARSHALL.

An Ex-Swell Professional Boxer. Among the boxers who got the short end of a very modest purse for a "preliminary" bent in the Arena in Philadelphia one night recently was a young man whose real name is Clarence Halterman. A few years ago he was rich, was a star athlete of the Schuylkill India and Ceylon navy and a "toff" generally. He lost his sawmill and his money, "on the bis sewmill and his money, "on the street" and now he ekes out a livelihood by putting on the gloves and punching and being punched like a regular scrapper.—New York Telegraph.

yrocura Cures Piles!

HOW ARE YOU TO BELIEVE IT? If you have suffered from this annoying complaint, you have heard this promised before. Probably tried countless remedies, all with the same result-disappointment. Try one more.

Try Pyrocura--

It has been successful in curing some of the most obstinate cases on record, and hundreds of local people have given it their endorsement. We do not know of a case which it has not at least benefitted. Of how many other remedies can this be said? PYROCURA is purely vegetable and entirely

STAMFORD, Vt., Feb. 23, 1898. Messrs. Houghton & Wilmarth.

Gentlemen: In the few months that PY-ROCURA has been among our family remedies it has more than once brought speedy relief to our children after other remedies have failed to relieve catarrhal affections and annoying coughs resulting from colds. We simply bathed the parts affected. A neighbor suffering from piles to whom we gave PYRO URA reported immediate relief. A Creditable Inspection.

The state inspection of company M held in the Armory Wednesday evening was a credit to the militia boys. The hall was filled with local people who watched the drill and among them were a number of North Adams people. Col. James A. Frye of the Governor's staff was inspecting officer. Col. Clark of Springfield, commander of the second regiment, Lieutenant Edson of Holyoke, paymaster of the second regiment, Captain Philip Barber of Orange and Major R. A. Whippie of this town were present. The men were attired as required by Captain Hick's orders and made a fine appearance. The company was sent through the various drills by the commissioned and noncommissioned officers and their work was such as to bring forth a high compliment from the superior officers present. Col. Frye said the company was in excellent condition.

Injured By a Bull.

Freeman Webber, an employe at Buel E. Cole's farm at Zylonite, met with a bad accident Monday. He was leading Mr. Cole's thoroughbred guernsey bull, with a staff, to the scales at J. M. Burke's coal yard to weigh the animal. When near Foliett Bros. lime kilns the animal made a sudden swing of his head as if in play and one horn struck Mr. Webber's right arm with such force that it was dislocated at the elbow. Mr. Webber fell to the ground but clung to the staff until one of the employes of Follett Bros. took the staff and led the bull home. A year ago the buil was three years old and weighed or pairs, Wray and Towns preferred. 1570 pounds.

Where is the Walk!

Last winter considerable complaint was made by many people because there was no means of crossing from the sidewalk on Park street to the electric car at the end of the line except through mud and slush. Supt. Neary saw the expediency of a walk and said that a tar walk would be built as soonles the ground would permit. As yet the walk is still a thing of the future and now that the frost is out of the ground it would be well to consider the promised walk.

Reception to Canvassers.

The G. A. R. have decided to tender reception to the canvassers and those who assisted at their recent fair in the opera house, to be held at Grand Army hall Friday evening April 15. At that time a dance will be held and everything will be done to make it pleasant for those who attend. There are several articles which have been canvassed for which will also be drawn. The fair committee will complete arrangements at a meeting Saturday evening.

Death of Victoria Robarge.

Victoria Robarge died at her home in Plunkett's Lane Wednesday evening after several weeks illness. She was born in Canada and was 83 years old. She came to this town a number of years ago and was one of the oldest French residents. She was a kind and true Christian woman and had made many friends. She leaves two daughters, both of whom are married. The funeral will be held from Notre Dame church Friday morning.

To Observe Their Anniversary.

Many persons of both sexes are greatly troubled with cramp in one or both of their legs. It comes on suddenly and is very severe. Most people jump out of bed (it nearly always comes on either just after going to bed or while undressing) and ask some one to rub the leg.

There is nothing easier than to make the spasm let go its hold, and it can be accomplished without sending for a doctor, who may be tired and in need of a good night's rest. When I have a patient who is subject to cramp, I always advise him to provide himself with a good strong cord. A long garter will deif nothing else is handy. When the cramp comes on, take the cord, wind it around the leg over the place that is cramped and take an end in each hand and give it a sharp pull-one that will hurt a little. Instantly the cramp will depart, and the sufferer can go to bed assured it will not come on again that night. I have saved myself many a good night's rest simply by posting my patients subject to spasms of the legs how known it to fail, and I have tried it after they had worked half the night and the patient was in the most intense -New York Ledger...

which is now in its third year, there has not yet been any large battle by which the power of the belligerents can be tested. In the war of Spain upon Cuba, which is now in its fourth year, the fighting is yet continuous and severe, as it has been since the beginning of hostilities. In the war of England in northern India there has been a nause for some months on account of the disaster that overtook the British arms there last year. The warlike operations of Spain in the Philippines have apparently been brought to an end by the success of the Spanish forces, but recent advices lead to the opinion that the natives there are likely to try conclusions again with their conquerors. In the quarrel between Nicsragua and Costa Rica there have already been some acts of war, and the indications are that all the five republics of Central America will become involved in the dispute. After the civil wars in Brazil and in Uruguay peace has been restored, though both of these countries are yet disturbed in a manner that bodes ill for them. to use the cord as above. I have never Chile and Argentina are threatening each other and are arming for the set-> very serious contention in west Africa for the control of the month of the river Niger, and the recent maneuvers of small bedies of the troops of both countries near the lower regions of that river are marked with signs of danger. As to the controversies of four of the great powers of Europe regarding the direction of affairs in China it is surely to be desired that satisfactory arrangements may be made without resorting to war, for a conflict in which Russia, France, Germany, England and Japan took part would throw the whole world into confusion.

Thus in glancing over the globe from one continent to another the old phrase about "wars and rumors of wars" which was uttered 1,900 years ago is seen to be applicable at this time as it was in other times and indeed as it has been in every year of the history of mankind.

It will be noticed that England is yet in the forefront of the warlike nations of the world. The crack of her rifles is heard in the recesses of the Himalayas, the flash of her sword is seen on the banks of the Nile, the tramp of her redcoats disturbs the Niger, the walls of her defense loom up at Hongkong, and the lion of her power stands rampant at London. Her flag floats upon every continent. Her navy is in all the seas.

What shall be said of Spain? She has prostrated her enemy in the Philippines at a great cost of life and treasure. She has been fighting for more than three years in Cuba, and the results have been terrible for both of the combatants. Her powerful army there has been unable to crush the revolt of her subjects, who are today at her throat. The governments of Europe have turned their backs upon her. She is menaced by enemies within her own borders. She has stirred up the animosity of the American people. Spain has been the loser in all the numerous wars which she has fought on the American continent in this century, and it is time that she was driven from her last foothold on this side of another in Uruguay, whether Chile shall succumb to Argentina or Argencollision after collision in the Central American territories, it is certain that must work out their own destiny and that the government of this country can many has gained something without fighting for it. So has Russia. England believes that she will gain her end. So does France, while Japan seems satisfied to watch the changes in the situation. It is only China that is the sufferer, but there is not any means within her reach through which she is able to find relief.

It is for a very great stake that England is waging war in upper Egypt. Slowly and cautiously, but steadily, her army moves southward, bound to march from Khartum slong the valley of the White Nile straight through to Uganda and Lake Victoria Nyanza, from which who can say that she will not cut her way to the British possessions in South Africa, thus forming a British line from Cairo to Cape Colony and carrying out the project that was drawn up two or three years ago by Cecil Rhodes? France may try to obstruct her progress, Russia may offer objection to it, and Germany may not like it, but it is doubtful whether any or all of these powers could put a stop

A Talk on Advertising.

THURSDAY, April 7, 1898.

There is immense cumulative power in continual advertising. As an instance of this, the statement given by the proprietors of a wellknown patent medicine is interesting. The business is seven years old. Advertising has brought an increase each year over the preceding year's business.

In March, 1898, the sales were $2,952.98 more than in the months of January, February, March and April, 1897, all added together.

The sales in January, February and March, 1898, were $7,504.40 more than the total sales for the entire years 1892, 1893, 1894, 1895 and 1896, all added together.

STILL WAIT FOR THE CRISIS.

The expected crisis in the Cuben incident did not come yesterday as was fully expected owing to the demands upon the sider its needs. part of Americans in Cubs for protection. The temporary withholding of President McKinlev's message from Congress was due to the receipt of cablegrams from Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, our consul general at Havana, advising that if the message contemplated armed intervention it be deferred until all American in Cuba could leave the island. He stated that the exodus could be completed by April 10.

Members of the foreign relations committee of the Senate and House upon being shown this dispatch promptly acquiesced in the opinion of the President and cabinet that the message should be delayed until next Monday. The utmost confidence is felt by the administration and Congress in the coolness and good judgment of General Lee in any emer-

The rumors of disturbances in Havana are not yet confirmed, but the conditions there are extremely threatening. Consul General Lee is still at his post and will remain there until all other Americans are safe. The President's message has only been changed in that it will ask Congress to authorize direct and immediate intervention. Otherwise the message will stand as heretofore outlined.

Today at noon the chances for an armistice being declared by the Spanish anthorities at Madrid seem to be lessened by a hitch in the proceedings. We believe that the most implicit confidence can be safely placed in the President and his advisers and in Consul-General Lee. While the public is impatient and anxious prospects for an ultimate peaceful adjustment

THE BROADENING OF METHODISM.

Four important questions will be discassed at the coming Troy district Methodist conference. They are for the selfentertainment of ministers attending the sessions, the holding of the conference every year at Saratoga, a decrease in the ratio of ministerial representation, and the equal representation of ministers and laymen in the general conference. This last is the most important and far reaching, and its decision will be of great interest to every Methodist.

The movement is meeting with general favor throughout the country, and while it will work a notable change in the government of the largest Protestant denomination, it is along the line of advancement and breadth in religion. It is only about 25 years since the first layman was admitted as a delegate to the general conference. Since that time the movement to increase the representation of the laity has been steadily opposed by the jealousy of some of the ministers. But the proposed change is bound to come, and the fact that every other church has equal representation is a strong argument in favor of the layman's cause.

ANOTHER SURPLUS MONTH.

It is gratifying to know that in face of the largest expenditures for March in many years, the National revenues for the month just closed exceed the expenditures by $1,094,750. The total was $32,-958,750, of which $15,450,432 was derived from customs, $12,888,234 from internal revenues and $4,620,084 from miscellaneous sources. The expenditures were $31,900,-000. The expenditures on account of the army foot up to $5,151,000, a little above the monthly average. Importations were greatly affected by the serious aspect of the Cuben question.

Northampton is following the flead of this city in the matter of combining the securing of a chemical engine with a demand for lower insurance rates. It's a good combination Spain is coming to terms. She does know a thing or two, after all.

The conduct of many representatives at Washginton shows that they realize the danger of the Cuben question being settled peaceably and with honor to the administration before they can act.

Richard Watson Gilder, editor of the Century Magazine, is going to build a summer home in the Berkshire Hills, and the Boston Globe asks: "Who says that poetry doesn's pay?"

*Mrs, Angie Loomis Dunham, St. John's Court Summer street wishes to make engagements for hair-dressing for the Easter Monday Ball. Those desiring shampoos will oblige by making engagements before that date.

*Swift's Lowell fertilizers, the best fer-tilizers, made, can be bought of T. W. Itlehmond, the sole agent for North Adams and vicinity. Well-screened coul, wood, hay and straw at lowest cash prices. 31 State State and 61 Ashland street.

C. W. Dennett now has the unqualified and enthusiastic support of the slub of which he is a vice-president for appointment to succeed himself as license commissioner. This simplifies matters greatly for Mayor Cady if he wishes to recognize the club.

The appointment of John Parker as deputy sheriff made this morning evidently means that Sheriff Fuller has decided to place his political fortunes in North Adams for the future in the hands of the "new" Republican party. It is hoped that before the time comes there will be no "new" nor "old" Republican party, but the one Republican party, in North Adams.

Prof. Albert S. Bushnell of Harvard declares that "no sensible man believes anything that he sees in the papers nowadays," This is too sweeping. A sensible man knows how to choose between the true and the false. The American press has proved itself, with few exceptions, patriotic and reliable under great excitement. The statement that all college professors are slab-sided possesses just as much truth as the professor's statement.

Call it rayconthentrandos and you will get it pretty nearly right. That is to say, if you want to talk Spanish instead of nglish.—Boston Herald. Well, we don't want to talk Spanish. See! It is the earnest wish of thousands of good Americans, that a lot of these jabbering idiots known as peace-at-anyprice men be made to walk Spanish. Haverbill Gazette.

And among the vigorous editors in New England, nobody is better calculated to make 'em do it than Editor Wright of the Gazette.

Attention has already been called to the fact that the city council has not considered the matter of financial aid for the hospital. Councilman Bracewell brought this fact strongly before that body Tuesday evening. So far from being able to assume the responsibility of maintaining an addition for the care of contagious diseases, the management is hard put to it to meet the present demands. The good work done by the institution is recognized by all. The fact that such a work is handicapped by the lack of funds should cause the council at least to con-

The Boston Store's Sale,

The great closing-out sale of W. J. Taylor's stock at the Boston Store, new Blackinton block, began at 8 o'clock this morning with a rush. All day long the store has been crowded with eager purchasers and the clerks have had to move lively to satisfy the demands made upon them. The general impression among customers was that the store was literally a hive of bargains.

BOSTON STORE.

To give all persons who work in stores, offices or factories, and who cannot come during the day, a chance to share in the great bargains that are now to be had here, the Boston Store will be open tonight, tomorrow night and Saturday night until 9.80 o'clock. However, not to weary our salespeople, who in the regular hours of the day at such a sale would be hard enough worked, we shall not require them to come to their duties until late in the morning, or given them time off during the day equivalent to the extra hours in the evening.

... There has been an unexpected large demand upon the part of the North Adams public for the new reversible wall map which THE TRANSCRIPT is giving at $1.00 including the Weekly for three months or daily for two weeks. Consequently every map on hand was quickly taken. Another lot was sent for which arrived yesterday, and from now on we shall try and have these maps on hand for all who desire them. It is a great map for a little money. To see it, is to want one.

Milk Producers at Variance With Con-

Boston, April 7.-The summer price of milk should have been fixed to take effect April I, but the producers and the contractors got into a quarrel and there was no agreement. The contractors wanted the producers to carry all of the surplus except 2 1-2 percent, whereas last summer the price of milk was so fixed that the producers should carry all but 5 percent of the surplus. The difference of 2 1-2 percent, it is said, means just as much less in the net price to the producer for his milk. Therefore, the latter would not agree, and as there seems to be no chance for a settlement, the producers offer to leave the matter

CURES WITHOUT PAIN. Pile Cure.

The Pyramid Pile Cure cures every form of Piles without one particle of pain. This desirable point is not obtained by the use of injurious opiates which simply deaden and paralyze the nerves of the parts and make matters worse in the long run. But it is done solely by its remarkable healing and soothing effects.

And while it thus gives immediate relief, at the same time the disease is not merely checked, but a radical cure is

And the point we want to make clear is that all this is done without a particle of This fact is one reason for the great popularity of the Pyramid Pile Cure and constitutes one very great difference between it and almost any other kind of treatment for piles. Every kind of surgical operation for piles is excruciatingly painful besides endangering the life of the patient and in most cases is not to be compared with the Pyramid Cure, neither in making successful cures without pain nor in cheapness and safety. The Pyramid Pile Cure has been before the public too long, and its merits recognized by too many people to allow it to be classed with the many salves, suppositories, pills, etc., and you can no risk in trying it, as is often the case with new and untried preparations.

If you are ever troubled with any form of piles or rectal diseases do not forget the Pyramid Pile Cure. Prepared by the Pyramid Drug Co. of Albion, Mich., and sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

LOVE LIVES ON.

I took from their hiding place last night Your letters, sweetheart, and read, And their passion thrilled in the waning light, Though I said, "My love is deed." But tears came back to my world worn eyes As I thought of a golden June And lovers who sang, "Love never dies While boats drift under the moon."

For white wings come and white sails go Drifting out into the dawn, But memory comes with refluent flow, And it's true as ever it was, I know, That love lives on and on.

It comes with the touch or the clasp of a hand, Or the glance of a stranger's eye. Or a kindly act in a foreign land, Or the gleam of a starry sky, Or a drafting boat on a silver lake, Or a lily you touch with your oar,

Or the sound of the winds and waves that break In melody on the shore. But as long as white wings come and go Or drift in the rosy dawn, While memory comes with refluent flow,

It is true as ever it was, I know, That love lives on and on--Emma Playton Seabury in New England

HONORABLE ANNE.

Ah Ging's welcome when I came a bride to the ranch was not of the warmest. The dusky adobe wall throwing him into picturesque relief, he stood on the ranchhouse veranda, his face full of suppressed excite-

Life flowed on smoothly, monotonously, till after the birth of Billikins. Ah Ging then announced his departure. "Better girl cook," he declared. "No likes baby. Heap trouble. Allee time cly."

We tried a number. All failures. last a young girl, tall, slim and neatly dressed, stepped on the veranda. "If you please, ma'am," she quietly said, "I heard that you wanted a girl. Can I have the place?"

I heard her history, which was simple. The previous year she had come from England to join her brother on a claim, had fallen ill, had gone to the county hospital at La Huerta and had come thence to me. While hearing these details Cedrio returned. But one conclusion could be drawn from his utter dejection. "No girl" was stamped on every feature. Samantha had recommended me to Odessa Green, who, less exacting in regard to scenery, was willing to leave the family pigpen for a month's change, provided the washing was put out. Mrs. Allandale helped with the dishes, the afternoons were free, and a horse every Sunday was at her disposal.

I knew the type-ignorant, slatternly, familiar. Contrasting with it the newcomer my resolution was taken. Cedric, I have a servant already. "Where did she come from?"

"La Huerta, where she has been in the hospital."

"Is she pretty?" "That's an irrelevant question. Yes, rather-blue eyes and short, curly, yellow hair. "You know nothing about her." "But I know that Billikins has the whooping cough I must norse him, and you cannot cook Help is needed, and behold Anne. "So that's her name?"

"Yes, Anno James." He still demurred.

'Prudence is an admirable virtue, Cedrie, but you carry it to an extreme. Cedric yielded, still holding to his own opinion. "Keep her! Keep her!" he cried. But remember, if anything happens, be it on your bead.' Since the days of Ah Ging life had not been worth living. Appe came, and comfort followed after. Capable, retiring, a vague souse of injetery pervading her, she proved in our monotonous existence a Fergus McPherson-caution personified -opined that Anne had lied. He put it plainly: "Deceitful in speech, deceitful in deed. Better watch her, Mrs. Allandale."

My suspicions were not excited. In California nothing is impossible. Had not a scion of a lordly house died on a neighboring ranch—a ionely, neglected sheep herder? No. It was the uneasy air and restless look increasing day by day. I heart-ily wished for some pretext whereby Cedrle, dispatched into La Huerta, might inquire into the antecedents of the Hon. Anne. Chance favored me.

"MoPherson has been telling me," began my spouse a few days later, "about some bloodhounds in town that belong to the sheriff They are A1 at tracking oriminals; borrow them all over the state. Beastly shame it's such a journey. It would be rather jolly to see them.'

"Why not go? A change would do you good." "Go) And who would milk the cow?" "I myself."

'Your Noncensel' "Who is the sheriff?" I idly asked, med itating my next move the while. "Walte-Hiram Waite."

"Our Honorable," who had entered, bearing that ranch standby a smoking bowl of "mush," started, growing visibly pale-fresh food for uneasiness. Clearly, to learn the art of milking was imperative. The woman won as nanal, and Cedric before the week was over started for La Huerta with strict injunctions to interview both hospital superintendent and sheriff. In charge of the ranch were myself, Billikins and the Hon. Anne. Uneventfully passed the first few days, but on Monday from the veranda I espied a band of men. who, leaving the county road, came slowly no the drive.

Anne, perceiving them, grew white to the lips, and, bearing Billikins, precipi-

"Good evening," the leader began as he lifted his sombrero. "We're a kinder rough sight for a lady. You see, we're a poste over from Tulare trying to find a man named Smith. His tracks they seemed to p'int this way. Ain't seen any stranger round here lately?" "No, indeed."

"No wood chopper nor nothing?"
"No, none. What has this man done? What does he look like?"

"Real nice and young and kind. Not more'n a boy. Murdered a man over there, Here's his description," and he handed me a coarsely printed "Reward." "Well, boys, get a move oh. We're on our way to La Huerta," he added, "to borrow Waite's dogs. Well, good day, ma'am. Better not harbor any strangers.

A moment more and left alone, I thought over the situation. Cedric gone, no neighbor near, and a murderer at large whose steps "p'inted this way." Suddenly it was borne in upon me that Anne was the fugitive.

A firm believer in woman's intuitions, yet hoping desperately that mine were at fault, I unfolded the paper the sheriff gave me. It tallied well. Moroseness, agitation, all were explained.

Did Anne guess that her identity was known, my life, I feared, would pay the penalty. To ignore the situation, live through the night if possible and trust to some one turning up in the morning was all that could be done. Milking time brought fresh terrors.

How guard one's self with both hands engaged letting down floods of warm, innocent milk! Dinner was eaten hurriedly with the same feeling of uneasiness. Billikins tucked in his orib, Anne retired early, and, every sense on the alert, I was left alone to watch the nursery door.

It fascinated me. Who would open it? Anne, to hide among the canyons till the posse had returned to its Tulare home? Or Henry Smith, to make an end of me and flee? Truly, the ranch monotony was broken at last. Solemnly the clock ticked, slowly the hands went round. An hour passed. A movement in the adjoining room, and literally my blood ran cold. That had hitherto seemed a mere figure of speech. The sound ceased, and still I watched the nursery door. At last, when my brain would have turned with more, I heard a sound which, faint at first, grew louder and louder.

"Oh, beaven!" I oried. "The bloodhounds!" Then I fell senseless to the ground.

Slowly returned to consciousness, my gaze fell on Cedric, the La Huerta sheriff and Anne-Anne anxiously applying restoratives. "Take him away!" I gasped. "He will

"You are raving!" oried Codric. "That is Anne.'

"No-Smith, the murderer! The bloodhounds tracked him to the very door.' Here Hiram Waite thought fit to inter-

Sorry bout the dogs Might ha' known they'd scare

The Honorable Anne next day gave warning - ''If you please, ma'am, you and Mr. Allandale have been very kind, and I evo Mr. Billikins like my own, but I can't ray where I've been so misjudged.'

in St. John's Wood, and the night before they went to Paris the Prince of Wales dined with them. "And do you believe it, my dear?" asked Cedric on hearing the latest version. "She believes in the family traditions, but she will care less about such nonsense when she is Mrs. Hiram Waite." "Why, she met the man only last night!" "Semething will come of it. Trust a woman's intuition."

'Thanks, no!" he retorted, with a cheerful grin. "No teiling into what mare's nest I might be led. Never mind, darling, you did your best. We can't all be born detectives."

Cedric to the contrary, my prophecy came to pass, and our Hon. Anne was transformed into Mrs. Hiram Waite. NAVAL APPRENTICES.

There Are 1,500 Apprentices.-They Are Subjected to Rigid Discipline and Receive a Practical Education-An Attractive Life For Mealthy Boys.

[Special Correspondence.] NEWFORT, R. I., March 29.—There is a man in New York who stands in the light of a godfather to a great many. boys in Newport. He is Herbert Vandyke, an attorney, and he makes it his charitable mission to become the legal guardian for orphan boys who want to enlist as apprentices in the United States navy. The law requires that the consent of parents or guardians shall be obtained before a boy is accepted for enligtment. An orphan who is poor enough to want to enter the navy is not likely to own such a luxury as a legal guardian. Any one who lacks that requisite who applies at the New York navy yard is sent by Captain Merrill Miller of the receiving ship Vermont to the office of Mr. Vandyke. That gentleman goes into court, assumes the guardianship of the boy and signs his application for enlistment. After that, if he is qualified physically and there is no other obstacle, he is accepted and sent here for instruction. Most of Mr. Vandyke's proteges are the output of orphan asylums, who have no better future in sight than serving in the United States navy. They might have a much worse avecation. In fact, the apprentice school at Newport offers to a young man a very fine opening to a useful and agreeable cereer.

The training school is like the Naval academy at Annapolis, with this difference—the Naval academy turns out officers and the training school able seamen. The graduate of the training school has no chance of becoming an officer unless there is war and promotions are rapid, but many desirable places in the service are open to him. and the education which he receives fits him for any one of many well paid positions in civil life.

The boys accepted for a naval apprenticeship must be between 14 and 17 years of age, and they must conform to for enlishment are rejected. There are about 1,500 apprentices in the navy. The secretary of the navy wants to increase this number by 500 if congress will let him. The number under instruction here is about 800 each year. They are constantly being received and sent away. As fast as vacancies occur through death or discharge or desertion-208 deserted last year-more apprentices are accepted on the receiving ships. Most of these come from tioned. When an apprentice is accepted, he signs articles to serve until he is 21. Then an outfit is given to him, and he is sent to Newport for first instruction. Here he lives in barracks and studies reading, writing, geography and grammar. He sets good plain food and plenty of it three times a day. Every day he drills with spars and sails aboard the old ship Constellation, which lies rotting at the wharf here, and when the weather is good he has drill in small boats in the barber. It is an ambition of the commander of the training station to have two brigs built, so that the boys may have practical instruction on a sailboat on short cruises before being o'clock and turns in. At the end of six months after instruction begins-that is, about July 1 -the boys are put aboard the Alliance and sent on a five months' cruise. The last cruise was made by 268 apprentices, and they did all the work aboard ship. On this voyage they visited Southampton, Lisben, Funchal and St. Thomas.

During the first period of instruction and the cruise the apprentice receives $9 a month. When the Alliance returns from her cruise, if he has shown any aptitude for his work, he is promoted to the second class, and he receives thereafter $15 a month. An apprentice of the second class may be sent to one of the receiving stations or to a navy yard for duty and further instruction in the bandling of guns, in electricity, etc., or he may be sent to sea on one of the ships of the navy. If he develops into a first class seaman, he may be promoted to the first class and $21 a month. That is more than ordinary seamen or the raw recruits known as

'landsmer'' receive. Altogether the apprentice's life has many attractions, but always it has the drawback of strict discipline and the obligation to serve for at least four years. For this reason many of the apprentices desert every year, some purchase discharges, and few of them, when they attain their majority, colist. But they are always valuable material for emlistment in case of war, and the government considers the money speat on their education well invested.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

The question of cars for this year's big college boat race has caused some discussion among Yale's rowing leaders. Both the American broad blades, which have been used at Yale for years, and the English narrow blades have believers among Yale carsmen. Hartwell, Ives, Bailey and Armstrong believe that the American style is the better. Cook has been a stout believer in the English oar since his trip to Henley two years ago. Captain Payne Whitney was undecided up to last summer. He spent a month in England witnessing the training for the Henley and visiting many English oarsmen. He saw how the English cars worked, and now he is a firm advocate of the narrow blade. It is safe to predict that Yale's freshman crew will row with English or narrow cars. Report has it that Yale has already given an order to Donahue for cars to be made on the English pattern.

World. Sharkey as a Foul Fighter. Sporting men unite in saying that Tom Sharkey's chances for securing important matches in the future have been practically killed by his actions in the fight with Choynski. Foul fighters are not wanted in any prominent boxing clubs, because the game cannot stand them. In both of his contests with Choynski Sharkey was accused of breaking the rules. In his four round "ge" with Corbett he was charged with doing everything but box legitimately. In his fight with Fitzsimmons he was nocused of being a party to a deal whereby the Cornishman was deprived of the decision. In his short and indecisive battle with Maher here a year ago he fought foully, and even went so far as to punch one of Peter's seconds after a round had ended. The 22 Inch the Popular Frame. The 22 inch will be the popular frame during the coming season, according to the opinions of many dealers and persons long identified with the bicycle trade, for the reason that it is handier, more quickly and easily mounted, seemingly lighter and not troublesome to manage. Tom Ward, the well known wheelman, who ought to know, says the 22 inch frame model will outsell any other frame if it is only for two reasons—that it gives a rider a more grace-Inl and natty appearance and instills more confidence in the rider's ability to handle the machine without fear. Many makers have recognized this and have had models regularly constructed with the 22 inch frame, being at the same time prepared to give options on 34 🛥 26 inch frames. - New York World.

Uncle Sam has been criminally negligent of this post, which holds the key to the gulf, commanding entirely the northern approach, and which can be used as a base for fleet operations against Cuba. It is valuable as a coal-ing station and seat of supplies during a war. The place of late years has been nothing more than a quarantine station, and the marine hospital service has had its disinfecting plant there. The war department, however, is to resume charge of it, and a new health station will probably be established on Fleming key. entering, even if it were possible for them to do so. The channel is deep, of a rich blue color, in strong contrast to the reef. It turns gracefully around Garden key, passing between it and Long key, then past Bird key, thus completing the circuit and affording an outlet to the southwest and northwest by Loggerhead key.

Fort Jefferson is therefore a coral bank in the center of a great lagoon, protected by coral reefs and surrounded by a complete miniature harbor. Rising as it does directly from the sea, it looks like a floating castle. The sand on which the fort stands is so shallow that by digging a foot or two anywhere salt water can be reached, and during heavy storms it has risen so that one could float about on a raft within the fort. Nevertheless the parade ground in the center was covered with grass, and little lawns of Bermuda grass were seen in various vards: The path from the sally port, where there is a drawbridge, and to the officers' quarters was fringed with tall cocoa palms and buttonwoods, while in various parts of the key cocoanuts grew and flourished, their roots deep in the sait water. The cottages of some of the officers were covered with vines, thus presenting an attractive appearance and fully justifying the name of Garden key. Each casemate on Fort Jefferson was over a cistern. During the civil war, when it was additionally used as a base of operations against the Confederate states and 2,000 men had to be furnished with water, the supply gave out. and a condenser was kept running day and night to supply the de-

Mare (or Napa) Island is 22 miles from San Francisco, northeast and inland, opposite the town of Vallejo, where most of the workmen employed in the yard live. A little steamer, the Ellen, plies between Mare Island and the town for the accommodation of officers and men. Benecia, a few miles away, is where John C. Heenan did some of his training for the pugilis. tic ring and where he had a blacksmith shop, said to be still in existence. The mountains of the Sonoma valley group form a background to the place. The island derives its English name from the fact that a Spaniard raised mares on it for breeding purposes.

The huge drydock at Mare Island is perhaps the most interesting feature. Imagine a small collseum or classic amphitheater, and you will have almost a literal idea of this massive basin.

It is made of granite and is elliptical in shape, its sides terraced with innumerable steps leading down to a flat oval at the bottom, along whose greatest diameter rests the keel of a docked vessel. The reason for docking is that the ship's sides and keel may be cleaned, started bolts and strains below the water line may be repaired and the hull given a new coat of paint. The ordinary landlubber has little idea of the enormous amount of drift that collects on a seagoing vessel's hull-millions of tiny shellfish, harnacles, whelks, minute clamlike mollusca, parasites of every description-against the gathering of which there is no known preventive. A three months' cruise will foul any ship-wood, iron or steel-to such an decreased and her efficiency impaired. And docking is always an expensive affair, the cost of which adds largely to the financial maintenance of our navy. A cruiser out of water is a queer looking object. Her grace, her lightness, her trees form a larger part of the most appearance of speed and agility vanish when she is in the drydock. She looks like a fish on land or a seal on a barrel-a thing amphibious, clumsy and slow moving. Her dignity has disappeared. There is too much incline to her bow and stern, her screws and rud. der look triffing and inadequate, and her ram, her formidable forefoot, capable of administering the kick that crashes in the ribs of her adversary and sends her to Davy Jones' locker a dismantled wreck, seems only a hideous protruding snout, the lower jaw of a sulky bulldog.

Then there is the storing of provisions, done mechanically by those huge lean arms, cranes and sweeps that swing to and fro and drop their burden within the ship's hold. A few months ago the greatest activity prevailed at the Mare Island navy yard, but at present the work is of the The next year pirates, under the notoriordinary kind, in strong contrast to some of the eastern yards. The Philadelphia arrived there last fall, was placed in the drydock, cleaned, painted, dismantled and stripped of her last gun and then towed into the stream, where she presents a pitiable spectacle, a sorry looking hulk. Her great barbettes, through which her 6 and 8 inch rifled guns once protruded menacingly, now resemble the eyeless sockets of some monster. And yet she is one of our best armored ships. penters, joiners, calkers, machinists and laborers, working night and day. Captain Henry Glass, U. S. N., is now acting as commandant of the yard owing to the indisposition of Admiral Kirkland, who is the senior rear ad-

4 ALBERT P. SOUTHWICK.

The Americans Once Occupied Havana City,

It is not generally known that American troops were at one time in Havana in conjunction with English soldiers, and they suffered principally from that terrible scourge, yellow fever. It is the foe to be dreaded more than all the bullets or shells of the Spaniards about Cuba.

James G. Blaine once remarked that the United States could well afford to purchase Cuba at "a good round price" in order to get rid of the annual danger of yellow fever. A commission from the United States which visited the island several years ago and investigated the character of this continuous menace to that country reported: "Cuba has become the greatest nursery and camping ground of one of man's most ruthless destroyers. Itself most seriously affilcted, it annually disseminates to other lands, as from a central hell, disease and death." But Havana has never been difficult to capture by an armed force. Santiago de Cuba, on the southern coast, was the first capital, the seat of government being transferred to Havana in 1550. ous Jacob Sores, sacked the church and the houses of the wealthy and forced the commandant of the fort to surrender. After committing numerous outrages and murdering many of the influential citizens Sores departed. The place was afterward repeatedly seized by buccaneers. It was unsuccessfully attacked, however, by Sir Francis Drake in 1585,

In 1762 an English squadron commanded by Admiral Pocock, the entire force under charge of Lord Albemarle, landed soldiers and sailors at Cojimar, about four miles from Havana, bombarded the city and compelled it to capitulate on Aug. 14 after a defense of two months. They retained possession of the city until July of the following year, when it was restored to Spain by the provisions of the treaty of Paris.

Our army would probably follow the plan of Lord Albemarle, though, as Cojimer is today within the reach of the guns of Morro castle, an invading army vould probably be landed a little farther east, possibly on the beach of Bauranao, and from there march directly inland to destroy the Havana railway and thus sever all communication with Matanzas and combat if necessary with the 60,000 Spanish soldiers. Troops can also be landed near the village of Cabanas or Mariel, a few miles vest of Havana, to tear to pieces the Western railroad. But an army of occupation should not be allowed to remain there any great length of time. The deadly climate would soon decimate the hardy soldiers of a more northern region. The insurgent forces would serve as guides and vanguards and might at an early day be left to preserve the military government of the island.

As horses are few in Cuba it would be necessary for the United States government to transport them for the use of the cavalry, and the Texas pony has long been recognized as the best breed for this purpose.

But our naval force is sufficient to lay every city in Cuba in ruins after a few hours' bombardment, and an army is only an auxiliary to complete the subjugation of that gem of the An-

A Sailor Violinist,

Men of unusually fine education and accomplishment very often drift into the United States navy, and it is this class of men who furnish the better order of instrumental music aboard war vessels that are not blessed with bands. and only flagships have them. In a large ship's company there are always banjo plunkers and guitar and mandolin thrummers innumerable up "forward," but in the line of higher grade music there are few good sized ships in the American navy that cannot produce one or more excellent violin or zither players.

Here is a peculiar story: A young Pole of noble family shipped as a landsman on an American warship at Gibraltar a few years ago, and before he had been aboard 24 hours he had all the officers aft as well as the men forward in a trance over his violin playing. He did not have a violin of his own-it was in pawn somewhere in Italy-but he played on one belonging to an Irish marine whose musical abilty consisted only in his rendition of The Rakes o' Mallow" and "The Devil's Dream." This young Pole was simply a master of the violin. When the ship on which he served returned to the United States, he was permitted to leave the service, and now he is Trevinck, the well known violin instructor of Chicago, but he was not Trevinck in the navy.

Humor In an Epitaph.

An Irishman, having lost his wife and one child in the old country, journeyed to this with his living child, and while passing by steamboat down Lake Champlain his boy sickened and died and was buried in Plattsburg. The bereaved parent tells the following story of how he buried him: "I asked a neighbor to give me the loan of a wheelbarry to wheel me boy to the burying place, and after the box was in the ground I raised a boord at the head or the grave, and to kape the remimbrance of me boy I had this bit of epitaph painted upon the boord: Beneath this stoon lie two children dear, Wan in swate Ireland and the other here.'

These did credit both to the authors and speakers, and to the training they have had in thinking and in elecution. There seemed little hope for the judges when at the close o the speaking they retired to make their decision for the award of prizes. Each speaker had enthusiastic supporters, and each was deserving of honor. The judges, on the hasis of both composition and delivery, final creturned the following decisions: First prizes. Miss Felicia H. Brown and Winfield H. Dennett; second prizes, Miss Elizabeth Morris, Everton J. Lawrence. The prizes consisted of handsome books, and were presented by Dr. Gadauy. The liamstown, Principal F. F. Murdock and

Many of the Important questions of the day were satisfactorily settled in the productions before the judges made their decision on the most important question of the evening.

The program opened with the cherus, "Lo, the Gladsome Day is Breaking," by the school. E. J. Lawrence described in his oration the vagaries of public opinion. He had a forceful delivery and c ear expression that made the points of his oration stand emphatically to be remembered. Miss Felicia H. NO ARREST MADE YET in the Mileage Book Swindle Case. Mr. Gurney Returns From Boston.

F. E. Gurney returned Wednesday night from Boston, where he had been since Monday looking up a matter in connection with a mileage book swindle. Mr. Gurney deals in mileage books and last week he let a Boston eigar drummer named Samuel H. Joski have two books, to be ready to knife him. one on the Fitchburg and the other on the Boston and Maine road. The two books contained $31.74 worth of mileage. In Boston Joski sold the books to a ticket scalper namal George O. Fogg, who had known of croked work on Joski's part, and he notified Mr. Gurney. Neither of the books had been used. The dealer restored them to Mr. Garney, who left a warrant for Joski's arrest in the hands of Inspector Wise, and it is believed the man will be brought to time in a few days. Joski has sold eigars in this city for seven years and was supposed to be all right. He is 26 years old and his mother is said to be wealthy. It is expected that when arrested a full settlement will be made for the trouble and expense caused by his dishonesty. He is not now at work, having recently been discharged by two cigar firms, but he is believed to be in Boston and will be looked up.

Ostensibly the notice of the opening of the store is for the convenience of people who work, but who work shorter days. Is this a reat advantage? Are we all to go back to the old-fashioned "corner grocery" regima, or are we to be content to go on giving a continuous performance free? These questions are asked in good faith.

JOHN PARKER, DEPUTY

to the Position of Deputy Sheriff.

BOND RECEIVED THIS MORNING

The Vexed Question Decided as Has Been Expected. Appointment Well Received Here. Political Bearings of the Decision.

John Parker has been appointed deputy for a short a me, took a rising vote on the sheriff for this city to take the place of question as to whom a should endorse, the late John E. Maloney. Sheriff Fuller The result was a narramous vote in favor sent his bond this morning, and within a Mr. Dennest, and he will now have the day or so Mr. Parker will have secured united support of the club. There are his hondamen and taken his commission.

This action has been expected for some time, as it was known that Mr. Parker had been offered the position, and a few days ago, as stated in this paper, he informed Sheriff Fuller that he would accopt. Mr Parker was securing bondsmen Jean Baptiste hall next Wednesday even- yesterday in anticipation of the official

> This settles one of the most interesting contests for an appointment that this city has had for some time. Mr. Parker's appointment is undountedly due largely to the position be occupies as the real head of the "new" Republican club, although that organization announced that it would take no part in the contest. There were two other candidates openly working for it, George Owens with the solid French support, and Fred Carter with a long and miluential petition. The appointment of Mr. Parker is expected to bring to Sheriff Fuller next fall the backing of many who were known to be opposed to him for other political reasons, but the French voters are now supposed

The appointment, political influences as.de, is generally received as an excellent one. Mr. Parker is a comparatively young business man, who is well liked personally by all who know him. He is a native ct Pownsl, and has lived in this city for about 12 years. He was for a time in the market business, and later was clerk for S. J. & W. C. Ellis. About a year ago he took, with G. B. Brainard, the management of the Johnson store.

Foster and His Revolver.

Foster Dox, 13 years old, was in court this morning for willfully discharging firearms within the fire district. It is alleged that Wednesday afternoon he promenaded about Drury high school, firing a revolver promiscuously. The case was continued until April 16 under $50 bonds.

David Donald for assault and battery had his case continued until April 14. Louis F. Crosier for drunkenness had his case continued. John Roberts for disturbing the peace had his case continued for judgment. The cases against Dr. G. W. Bradley were continued until Satur-
